West Mountain, Hamilton

In these mess-loving courses of paint and printmaking, mosaics and metal, plaster, clay and concrete, be ready to be inspired in creativity! The younger class will focus on Animal Art – printing fish, building birds, and creating enormous bugs, while the older class will be up to their elbows in sculpture. Students will learn how to use the five elements of design - line, shape, colour, texture and space – as they create.

Sandra has taught art classes both in schools and privately for the last 18 years and these summer projects are her all-time favourites – some of them tried and tested by a hundred of her students. She studied art at Redeemer University College, taught at Providence Christian School in Dundas and now homeschools her four children while teaching art classes from her home and architecture classes to various high school groups.
